Victoria, B. C. March 2 .-- Details bought by the Empress of India, o the attack on the American mission, at Changsu, near Amery, show that the looting of the mission was occasioned by the anti-foreign spirit. Another feature of the Chinese national movement, as first indicated by the boycott, has been the establishment of an independent Chinese christian church. The movement is being formed to our entirely foreign missionaries. A Chinese Presbyterian pastor from San Francisco headed the movement at Shanghai, where $10, 000 had been subscribed to the organization of a campaign fund for the Chinese independent church.

An Open Breach.

Washington, March 1 .-- Action by the Senate committee on interstate commerce today, in authorizing Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, to render the senate a favorable report upon the unamended Hepburn railroad rate bill, widens the breach between the Republican Senators and the President, intensifies the bitter feeling between Republican Senators on the issue, and puts the rate legislation, which President Roosevelt has so persistently claimed as his own before the open senate on a Demoeratic footing.

The most extraordinary situation in years is created in the senate. The dominant Republican senators on the committee, to emphasize their break with the President, voted, with grim humor, to give senator Tillman the management of the rate bill in de-

NEW RAILROAD

Louisville und Nashville Said to be Aiming at Connection with Cairo.

Mayfield and Murray at last seem to be destined to have a new railroad. The Louisville & Nashville system has a corps of engineers and surveyors at work laying out a route from Cairo to Nashville, to compete with the Illinois Central, and, it is said, the road will be built.

The promoters of the Cairo and Cumberland Gap railroad are also busy and are endeavoring to get the Federal government to send an agent over the proposed route to make a map, showing the natural resources

The data thus gathered is intended to be used by the promoters to induce foreign capital to invest in the road. Mr. Goode, the promoter, will go to Europe at once in the interest of the road. The line, if built, will traverse not only a rich farming country but some of the finest deposits of clay in the world are located along route and will be developed whenever transportation facilities are to be had, Across the Tennessee river, in Tennessee, there are coal and iron in abundance.

Farmer's Strike.

Indianapolis, March 1 .--- A strike of the 200,000 farmers composing the American Society of Equity, an organization with headquarters in Indianapolis, has been called for March 1. Every one who responds to this call will agree to withhold from marketing any agricultural products excepting at prices that are up to the level that has been decreed as equitable by the officials of this organization.

The word is passed through all the wheat growing states, and the reresponses that are being made are said to be causing considerable concern on the part of market men and speculators.

past a body of legislators gathered in Virginia. The important moment has arrived when liberty must find a champion or perish. There steps forward a young man with the eloquence of a Demosthenese, and such oratory fell from his lips that men bowed their heads, and moans and sobs sould be heard from every portion of the room. He told them their faults; the oppression to which they were subjected; how the merciless tyrant had over-ridden their smallest hopes how he was draining the very life blood from their fullest vein. In a burst of eloquence he cries out, "Three million of people, armed in the holy cause of liberty, and in such a country as that which we possess, are invincible to any force which our enemy can send against us," and on to the end, eyes flashing, voice ringing, Patrick Henry towering, half human, half divine, made this personal declaration: "I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me Liberty or give me death.

How beautiful is the thought that American citizens of today are copying that worthy example, though perhaps in ways unseen; that those words were not uttered in vain; that this imperial challenge to greed and might did not fall on deaf ears.

But let us not think for one mowent that the only "men of the hour" were and are the heroes in some great war. It was not the will of the Great

There must be men to meet the occasions that arise, and demand immeliate attention.

Slavery like a poison had steadily stolen into the pure life blood of the government. And like an adder it was stinging the very heart of the nation. In the Hall of Congress, which is the citadel of national security, the viper began to prey with its fangs. The Senate has 'its Gettysburg, and many a Shiloh was fought on its floors. Actual war raged in Kansas. Greek was meeting Greek at last; and in the field of politics became almost as sulphurous and murky as an actual field of battle.

Amid the noise and confusion, the clashing of intellects like sabers bright, and the booming of the big oratorical guns of the North and South, now definitely arrayed, there came one day into the Northern camp the figure of a man who, inspite of an appearance somewhat at outs with Hogarth's line of beauty, wore a ser ious aspect, if not an air of command, and pausing to utter a single sentence that might be heard above the din, passed on, and for a moment dis appeared. The sentence was pregnant with meaning. The man bore commission from God on high. He said, "A house divided against itself cannot stand. I believe this government cennot endure permanently half free and half slave. I do not expect the Union to be dissolved; 1 do not expect the house to fall, but I do expect it will cease to be divided." We recognize this as the language of Lin-

Again, I ask you not to think the only "men of the hour," are in great wars or politics. There are men who have met and are meeting occasions in the financial world. Men who are ready to sacrifice anything for the upbuilding of civilization. Such a man stands before the footlights of the world today in the personality of Andrew Carnegie. He is financing great enterprises, and is giving his millions for educational purposes.

In truth, he is a man, the type of which the world does not possess

Washington was a truthful boy; a kind, loving son, and a worker to benefit others. Napolean, even in youth was very ambitious, and owing to his abilities in mathematics and military tactics he became a great general. You all know the story of Abraham Lincoln; how he studied so hard when a boy; also what difficulties he labored under. Andrew Carnegie's opportunity was something similar to Abraham Lincoln's. All of these were clear minded men, watching for occasions that would give them a chance to do something for themselves and others. And when the chance came they took it.

The question has been asked, "why do we study the lives of great men? The answer is that we may get lessons from them and become great men ourselves in the future. #### HELPS TO STUDY.

The city of Caesarea Phillippi lay at the foot of Mt. Hermon on the site of what was formerly known as Panias, so called from the God Pan to whom was consecrated a cave near by. From the side of the hill be'ow this cave flows the river Banias, one of the three principal affluents of the Jordan. The city had been recently rebuilt by Philip, in whose tetrarchy it was, and renamed Caesarea in honor of Augustus; the name Phillippi, after its builder, distinguished it from Caesarea on the coast in the tetrarchy of Antipas. It lay 1050 feet above sea level, while Hermon towered more than 8,000 feet above the city. The journey from the Sea of Galilee was about 25 miles, and involved an ascent of about 1700 ft. It led through territory predominantly gentile in population.

In substance the confession of Peter affirms just what Andrew said to Peter when he first met Jesus. (Jno. 1:41) But this is more mature. It is a deliberate assertion made after month of living and working with Jesus, which had deepened their knowledge of him and strengthened their love for him, despite the fact that he had not followed the career which they had looked for in the Messiah. That they now reaffirm their first confession shows that their faith in Jesus personally is stronger than their devotion to their own conception of the Messiah's career. The core of their faith, that which remained unchanged and gave it moral significance, was the attraction of Jesus' personality for them, which held them steadfastly to him while he lived a life so very different from their conception of what the career of the Messiah was to be.

The church is to be built, not on Peter, a frail, fallible disciple, -not on Peter's confession, for it is not a doctrine that saves us-but upon Christ It is the living Christ that saves through faith, regeneration. These doctrines show only how Christ is made efficient to us.

The keys of the kingdom refers primarily to making plain the plan of salvation to a lost and ruined humanity, just as a key to arithmetic makes plain the solution of problems. We can shut the kingdon to men by failing to make plain to them and holding out to them the plan of salvation.

Jesus then told them of his death and resurrection. Peter rebuked him. That Peter should venture to reprove Jesus is surprising. The Jews of Jesus' day believed, not in a suffering, but in a triumphant Messiah, and least of all in one whom his own nation should reject. To Peter, sharing still the ideas of his people, so far from rejection and death being involved in Messiahship, it excluded them. This suggestion of Peter is to Jesus a temptation; he would gladly believe that his work could be accomplished without rejection and death if possible. But he puts the temptation in-

To take up the cross and follow Jesus is to be ready, as he was, to lay down life itself in obedience to the will of God and for the good of men.

"Whosoever shall lose his life:" whosoever shall unreservedly pour out his life's energies, if need be, to the extent of death. "Shall save his life" He is speaking, not of continued existence, but of the true use to be made of this mysterious life, with all its powers and possibilities, with which each of us is endowed. V. 36. In this verse Jesus appeals to legitimate self-interest, to the noble desire to make the highest use of oneself, to realize one's own highest possibilities. When once life is wasted, there is all men, that if properly seized leads nothing with which, though a man posses the world, it can be bought back

Mt. Hermon is the probable site of the transfiguration. It was while Christ was praying that this transformation of his appearance took place. Peter's motive in building the booths was evidently to prolong the delight-Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup stim- experience. It is in the voice from heaven that the experience culminates, with the passing of the voice the vision ended.

Early Spring Street Gowns-Fads and Fancies In Neckwear.

By RENE DEVERAUX.

The spirit of sociability is very pronounced in New York these last few weeks, and it has become very popular for fashionable women to give Sunday eges of fire, lightning and tornadoes 2 o'clock dinners to their intimate friends, either at home or at some uptown restaurant. Being the only holiday of the week for business men, they can enjoy these informal affairs without being harassed by business engagements. Then, too, the refreshments are so light that no one has a disagreeable feeling toward his hostess the next morning. At one of these dinners lately the costumes worn by the women were almost as brilliant as those worn at the opera, only no jewels were displayed, but the colors made one think of an old fashioned garden.

The opera season has surely reached its height during the last week, and to strangers coming into town it is really worth the price of an admission ticket just to see the beautiful costumes, jewels and feathers. In fashion history the passing season will be recorded as one of feathers, for a harvest of them is still to be seen on all the latest midwinter hats: besides it is predicted that they will be worn to a certain extent in the spring. But then no one can foretell to a certainty what new fashions will become popular. As soon as anything new becomes universal it ceases to be fashionable.

A few of the new spring street costumes are being displayed in the shop windows and showrooms this week. One wonders where all these changes come from, for there is a distinct new style in all the models. One was a mannish gray suit of cloth, with a cashmere finish. The short pony coat and circular skirt are both trimmed with gray buttons having black velvet centers. The buttons on the skirt trimmed the center of the front and reached down to the hem, making a most original little walking suit.

A very jaunty looking costume was a flecked wool in gray and white, with a short hip coat closed in front, with smart buttons beginning just below the velvet collar. Many of the new skirts are circular, but the plaited skirts have been such favorites that some of the latest models show the plaited effect, with panels set in the back and sides; sometimes a plaited panel down the front. This is a decided relief to the home dressmaker, because the circular skirt is hard to hang properly, especially if walking length. Many of the demitailored suits for young ladies are set off most beautifully with the finest of embroidered cuffs and collars. Dainty frills for the neck and elbow give a suit that aristocratic feminine touch that every one longs for, and this is where a girl can use her originality to great advantage. There are so many handmade things sold in the shops that a suit is hardly complete without some dainty bit of fluff and frills on it. During the last days of his life, when captivity, disappointment and sickness had well nigh completed their work, it is said that the agony of his fatal disease drew from him on many occasions the pitiful cry of, "Why did the cannon balls spare me?"

During his long military career Napoleon fought sixty battles, while Caesar tought but fifty. In the earty part of his career be was utterly reckless of danger while on the battlefield, and this spirit of fearlessness contributed largely to the love and esteem in which he was held by his armies. There was a curious belief among the English in Napoleon's time that he had never been wounded, and indeed the report was current that be carefully if not in a cowardly manner refrained from exposing himself. Nothing could be more contrary to the truth, for he was in reality several times severely wounded. troops the belief that good fortune never deserted him and that, like Achilles, be was well nigh invulnerable, he always made a secret of his many dangers. He therefore enjoined once for all upon the part of his immediate staff the most absolute silence regarding all circumstances of this nature, for it is almost impossible to calculate the confusion and disorder which would have resulted from the slightest report or the smallest doubt relative to his existence. ### Some Teutonic Conquerors.

[Read before the General History Class Jan. 23rd, 1906, in Marion High School by Miss Willie Croft. [

The brightest star in the crown of a nation's glory is ever the record of her bravest and most successful conquerors. To them more than to all her statesmen, her orators and her rulers, she owes her position in the world. The statesmen may frame laws of justice, the orators may proclaim in all the beauty of rhetorical mastery their matchless beauty and glory, the rulers may govern with a hand that bespeaks love and devetion to their country, but they are of less import than the conquerors.

But go with me to the battlefield, where mighty armies surge back and forth in ceaseless conflict, where the roar and rumble of artillery shuts out all other sounds, and where the smoke Keep the bowels open with one of Aver's Pills at bedtime. lust one. of battle shuts out the very sun in the heavens. Point out to me the greatest leaders on that battlefield, and I will show you the real protectors of a country's glory. They are the bulwark of a nation's hope, and on their achievements rests the fate of their country. More powerful than all the statesmen, orators and kings, it is they that hold in their hands the destiny of the world.

Germany has always stood well in the front among nations as the posfor of mighty conquerors, and to them she owes her powerful position in the world of to-day.

The first time that the Teutonic people took a great part in the history of the world, was during the decline of the Roman Empire in the West. The first great leader was Alarie the Bold, the king of the Visigoths, who was determined to lead his nation to independent victory. In 395 he invaded Greece and struck deadly terror into the whole of that country. Athens of fered him but little resistance and was easily conquered, but he showed great humanity toward the conquered čity, and spared her art treasures. As him as a conqueror with great demenstrations of reverence. In the ear 400 he made his way into Italy with all his people, and defeated the Romans first at Acquileia. But in 402 a vast army under Stilicho met Alaric and defeated him, and recovered many splendid spoils of Greece. Then Alaric with the remains of his defeated army forced his way through the Alps, and made good his escape. gut in 403 the folly and pride of the imperor Honorius, first, by the masacre of the wives and children of e Gothic mercenaries, brought Ale again to Rome. No army bared his path, he led his hosts to the ry gates of Rome and laid seige to en to sue for terms of surrender, Alarie being content to accept a on retired from the city to

> Now let us look for a moment at Genseric, the great leader of the Vandals, whose very name struck terror to the hearts of all. He with his strong army made an attack upon Rome. The city could offer no resistance to the great Genseric and his barbarous army. He stripped the city of its valuable o. naments, and the much prized trophies of its many victories, and carried off many thousand of its inhabitants as slaves.

But the greatest of these Teutonic conquerors was Charlemagne, the man who needs no monument made for him by other hands, because his greatness has erected a monument for itself in his name. The man who was too strong to ever prefer deceit, the man whose greatest aim was to educate and civilize his people.

During his reign, which covered nearly half a century, he conducted fifty-two campaigns, the greatest of which were those against the Lombards, the Saracens and the Saxons. And all these people he reduced to submission, and they accepted him as their sovereign and Christianity as their religion.

He not only conquered these people, but by his greatness and force of character, made himself Emperor of the Romans. From the very outset fortune favored him, and he was every where successful.

Up 'till the beginning of the German kingdom about the year 950, Germany, while being prominent in the affairs of the world, does not hold such a position as she does after that time. The conquerors which have been named are the principal ones who were conspicious in the building up of Germany. ### What Will You Do With Jesus?

This question comes to every sinner. What will you do with Jesus? The decision has, to be made some where in this life. Jesus stands before you waiting for your recision. What will you do? I want to say to the church members or christian people that just as certain as Jesus stood before Pilate waiting for a decision from him just so certain does the Hely Spirit stand at the door of your heart waiting admission; what will you say to him? You may insist on silence on this subject. But you can't do that and live. To grieve tho Holy Spirit and keep him out means death to you. The day has come when every intelligent christian will open the door of his heart to receive the Holy Ghost in his fullness or go back to darkness and death. The Holy Ghost must be admitted into the church or Christ will depart out of the church. She has crucified the honor of establishing the French Son of God anew in the rejection of more get rid of the responsibility tion of chief of a petty tribe to the resting upon her in this matter than rulership of a powerful kingdom, Pilate could shift the task of deciding in the case of Jesus.

Many a preacher and layman has the self-made prince, who could so decided like Pilate, and the churches well weild his authority among his have lost their hold on the world as sturdy warriors, now chief of the to saving it from sin and hell, by turning the Holy Ghost away. To see this truth one only has to stop a moment and think of the memory of Syagrius the Roman governor of the past. George Fox, who preach-Gaul at Soissons, and a bloody battle ed this great truth a hundred years followed, in which Clovis gained a before John Wesley preached it and decisive victory. Soon after this he Whitfield, Wm. Arthors, Dr Lenie Pierce, Bishop Asbury, Dr. Adam And soon he undertook the invasion Clark, Bishop Foster, and many others. These were great men in the off from the old creeds and ceremomonies, just like the Methodists did And for years they run well.

> So in this revival the Cumberland Presbyterian church was born, and thousands of souls have been born into God's kingdom, through he faith and worship of these churches, by the help and power of the Holy Ghost. Bat alas! alas! for the want of good door keepers, akens have crept in, seeking a home and a shelter, wanting a job; not for the good of souls but for ease and comfort and self-gratification, and they that can get the most people into the church and get the money, he is the fellow, saved or not saved. So the Holy Ghost is left out and the dollar style and the devil has taken its place and the result is they are at sea with. out a rudder, going, going; and the preacher or layman that says that he is not responsible for this wrong or his sins is simply blindfolded by the devil and has his ears shut against P. Wake thou that sleepest and rise from the dead, and Christ will give ne light. Salvation is personal work and we have to repent of the wrongs of the past; that means to quit sin and do right, then God cenverts us or saves us from all past sins. This brings to us a new life; old things have passed away and we are living in a new atmosphere; and now the reward or pay we get out of the new do. If we do right and let the wrong alone or shun it, we are all right. This life does not destroy our free moral agency; if it did we would not be responsible for anything. but just

An Active Record.

Senator Morgan has had an active life. He was born at Athens, Tenn., June 20, 1824, and with his parents went to Alabama when he was nine years old. He was admitted to the bar of Alabama in 1845; was a Presidential elector in 1860 for the State at large and voted for Breckinridge and Lane; was a delegate in 1861 from Dallas county to the State convention which passed the ordinance of secession; joined the Confederate army in 1861 as a private in the Cahaba Rifles, and when that company was assigned to the Fifth Alabama regiment John Morgan was elected a major and later lieut-colonel of the regiment. He was commissioned a colonel in 1862 and raised the fifty-first Alabama regiment, and came out of the war a brigadier-general in command of an Alabama brigade. He was Presidential elector in 1876 and voted for Samuel J. Tilden, and was elected to the United States Senate to succeed George Goldthwaite, taking his seat March 5th, 1877. He has been in the Senate ever since, and will probably remain there as long as he wishes, or as long as be lives.

HOMES FOR CITY WAIFS.

NUMBERLESS ORPHANS IN GREAT CITIES-MANY DELIBERATE. LY DESERTED.

At one of the vacation Bible classes last summer, some tenement children were taught a word-guessing game. One of the words selected was "home." The little girl whose turn it was to guess failed to get a clue, and a boy trying to help her, said, "Think of something that smells awful and you something that smells awful and you want to get away from quick." The child guessed "house." The dirt and foul atmosphere of his home is disgusting to even the tenement child himself, yet home is the child's greatest necessity. Authorities on the subject strongly advocate thet private fortunes of philanthropists as well as state and municipal funds be devoted, not to building institutions for dependent children, but to pensioning widows with families and finding foster parents for orphans.

Of the 600,000 children under 14 years of age who form 18 per cent of the population of New York City, 25,-000 are homeless waifs. About half of these forlorn little ones are babies between the ages of two and four.

The causes that operate to bring about this pitiable condition are those that fill the workhouses and prisons,death of one or both parents, injury through accident, consumption, vice, crime, inability to obtain work and incompetence, desertion, juvenile de pravity.

Many Half Orphans.

Complete orphanage is less frequent than is generally supposed. In most cases that come under the attention of the charities associations, the children are half orphans. However when the father is the surviving parent, the result as far as the breaking up of the home is concerned is the same. A man rarely succeeds in keeping his children together. If they are very young a woman's care is imperative, and where poverty prevents the hiring of nurses, the charitable institution is the alternative. If a widow is left with a family the children stand a For her act of heroism, Miss Titus, of a home to the child, will give sub-

As to the little unfortunates who are classed as ungovernable, who run away from home, etc.--the fault lies largely in the home. There are 127 of them, and to each the city pays 38 cents a day for each infant cared for and $2 a week for each child over two years. The widower sending his child en to one of these institutions is requested to pay something towards their support. If he fails the city pays. A municipal officer is sent to visit the surviving parents of the children once a year, and where conditions have improved to the point which assures health and comfort, the child is returned to its home. The parents are not always anxious to regain posses ion of their children. It is a sad commentary on human nature that they exhibit more eagerness in this direc-tion after the child has reached an age where it can earn money.

To Make Better Citizens.

New York gives more largely to charity than any other city and its methods are most severely criticised. Nearly $8,000,000 was contributed last year, almost half of which went to institutions for the do-tute. It has been poiversally agreed, however, that the best means for caring for the waifs of great cities is by providing them with homes in country families. better chance, for not only is it a notor. the child's parents or relatives will lous fact that a mother will work never be able or willing to care for it owever, she was seized by the Newark rather to keep reflectively than a is urged. "THE DECIDER"

A New Trap for Women Who Hesi-tate About What to Buy.

An ingenious attempt is now being made in some of the big department establishments to assist the opinions of undecided women who come to shop.

Every salesman and every saleswoman knows the woman who haunts the bargain sales, flutters from counter to counter, is shown goods until the attendants are driven to distraction, thinks she will buy everything, and finally invests in a yard and a half of pink ribbon, simple because she is absolutely incapable of making up her own mind as to what she wants.

Drapers have long tolerated this form of mental weakness. Now they have revolted, and the day of the "Decider" has come.

The Decider is an American institution, and Gibsonian at that. She is beautiful as to face and features, and always gowned to perfection. Her duty is to induce the doubtful to buy. To the customer she appears as a customer, with the earnest intense sale face" that one now sees every day in the big stores.

She sees a customer a little worse ressed than herself hesitating over he purchase of a dress length of chiffon velvet. The shopman has done his pest to persuade the lady that it is the superlative bargain of the season.

'You ought to take it at once, madam." he says, eagerly; "if you leave t to think the matter over, you will egret it."

"I suppose so," the lady says, "but I want to look about first; it is so hard to decide—an evening gown is so very important." And she surveys the dress length again from three different Entrapping the Victim.

It is now the Decider's moment to step in. Pretending to have noticed the chiffon velvet, for the first time, she thrusts out a perfectly, gloved hand, and eagerly catches hold of an end of the material. She hangs it up against her fingure, and looks at it admiringly. The doubtful lady looks annoyed, gives the chiffon a tug, but the Decider holds on.

"If you are not going to buy this iress length," she says, "I will take it. It is the only one I suppose," she adds,

Meanwhile the genuine customer has bserved the exquisite "turn out" of eager "sale-hawk," as she imines the Decider to be. If si eleant a person is anxious to buy the uff it must be worth securing, she argues, so without further doubt she says sharply;

"But I am going to take it." ransaction is closed, and the seemingchagrined Decider disappears, Having settled this little business of chiffon velvet she sails off to the r department. Here she fixes on a sallow-faced oung wife, who has brought her hus you try this wonderful home food. Fill out

Then another is brought out but he objects to it too. "I hate these ashycolored things," he says petulantly. "Oh! take it off."

"Well, dear, what am I to do? You think the first one is too light and the other one is too ashy." The tone is despairing.

"Try this one on again madam," says the saleswoman, and the wife turns to take it but it is gone. She finds herself confronted with the elegant figure of the Decider, who has arrayed herself in the boa and a bolster muff.

The young wife looks at her husband and sees his eyes fixed on the charming vision of bright hair, bright eyes, gleaming teeth, and warm complexion, set off by the fluffy softness of the boa and muff. Entirely forgetful of her own sallow appearance, she quickly makes up her mind to have that boa-it is so very becoming. "I think dea" she says to her husband, "that this is just what I want I am sure mamma would like it. Her husband is still gazing at the pretty 'Decider" arrayed in the boa, and answers her jerkily.
"Yes, it's pretty," he says, absentmindedly, "awfully becoming to-toyes, it is so clean and fresh-looking, isn't it?" You can't do better; have it." In another second the boa and muff are both in the shop girl's hands, and the pale wife is giving her adis not an improvement on the old style lamp, but an entirely NEW METHOD of burning oil which has made common kerosene (or coal oil) the most satisfactory of all illuminants.

And when we say satisfactor, we mean satisfactory—not an illuminant that merely gives a brilliant light, but one that combines brilliancy with soft, restful, pleasing quality; that is convenient as gas, safe as a tallow candle; and yet so economical to burn that in a few months' use as a safe as a tallow candle; and yet so economical to burn

IT ACTUALLY PAYS FOR ITSELF

The ordinary lamp with the round wick, generally considered the cheapest of all lighting methods, burns but about 5 hours on a quart of oil, while The Angle Lamp burns a full 16 hours on the same quantity. This, even where oil is cheap, soon amounts to more than its entire original cost. But in another way it saves as much—perhaps more.

Ordinary lamps must always be turned at full height, although on an average of two

Ordinary lamps must always be turned at full height, although on an average of two hours a night all that is really needed is a dim light ready to be turned up full when wanted. A gallon of of a week absolutely wasted, simply because your lamps cannot be turned low without unbearable odor. All this is saved in The Angle Lamp, for whether burned at full height or turned low, it gives not the slightest trace of odor or smoke.

You should know more about the lamp, which for its convenience and sift, restful light, might be considered a luxury were it not for the wonderful economy which makes it an actual necessity. The macaroni wheat which the Secretary mentions is a fair example. WHY FENCE WIRE RUSTS.

Department of Agriculture says Farmers Use Cheap Material.

A bulletin setting forth the results of an investigation made by the Department of Agriculture into the corrosion of iron and steel wire fencing was is sued recently to the farmers of the country. Many complaints have been made to the department in the last year regarding the present quality of ron an steel wire used a fencing, and to improve these conditions, wit the hope f determining some remed; for he corrosion, Secretary Wilson orderd a thorough investigation, an th erts ame to the conclusion that the hief trouble is that the average 'arminsists on using the cheapest vir or fencing, and the cheap wire natural corrodes.

The department claims that some anufacturers hold that if it were posble to make a better grade of wire at en a slightly higher price, it would useless to put it on the market, as e American farmer would not buy it, cause he desires cheapness above her consideration.

The result of preliminary experients made by the Agricultural Deartment pointed to the manganese in e wire as undoubtedly being he chief use of the corrosion, and it is stated at the more manganese there is presnt in fence wire the quicker it will st or deteriorate.

SOUTHERN FARMS.

Rapid Increase in Values Makes the Whole South Prosperous. Manufacturers' Record.

While it is true that the industrial development of the South is going for- inward with amazing rapidity, it is nevertheless true that, by virtue of the extent of the agricultural interests in the South, agriculture is yet the foundation of the business of that section. A change from poverty to prosperity of the farmer, and a change from land without selling value to land in demand at an advance of 50 to 150 per cent. over the nominal price of one or two years ago, is the most far reaching development in Southern advancement of the last quarter of a century. It is far-reaching in many ways. It means that within the last year or two Southern farm properties have increased not less than $1,000,000,000 in value, probably at least $1,500,000,000. But more than that, it means that under this improved financial condition the Southern farmer has gained new courage, new backbone; that he has learned how to market his cotton crop; that he has fought to a finish the great battle as to whether the producer or the spec ulator is to control the price of his staple. Having won this fight, the entire handling of cotton from the field to the factory, whether the factory be in this country or in Europe, has entered upon an entirely new stage in its istory. It also means that land wit be more thoroughly cultivated, for the successful man, whether he be a farmer, a merchant, or a manufacturer, is always better able to work to good advantage than the one who is fighting losing battle.

More and more the diversification of agriculture has gone on and more and $5 more have fruit growing and truck raising, "hog and hominy," with the meathouse at home rather than in the West, been developed throughout the
